Gen Con® and Con*Quest Journals™ Together Again for New Gaming Journals

INDIANAPOLIS (February 4, 2016) Con*Quest Journals™ is excited to announce a two year license agreement with Gen Con®, The Best Four Days in Gaming™, for Gen Con branded Con*Quest Gaming Journals, tote bags, mini journals, and tabletop gaming pages.

“We are thrilled to license with Gen Con for the next two years.” said Shelley Harper, Con*Quest Journals partner and Indiana native. “We had great success with our first licensed Gen Con journal last year. We’re creating a new design for 2016, along with new pages and accessories.”

This year’s Gen Con Con*Quest Journal will feature the Gen Con logo with new original artwork themed on the game that started it all on custom quality binders. The journals will include newly designed pages based on feedback gathered from the gaming community, with themed pages for notes, demos, photos and more, plus protective sleeves and business card pages. A coordinating custom long handled tote bag will be designed to carry journals, dice and convention necessities. Attendees can capture every moment of The Best Four Days in Gaming™ in one place. Once the design has been finalized, all merchandise will be available for pre-order.

“The team at Gen Con is proud to continue our partnership with Con*Quest Journals through 2017,” said Scott Elliott, Gen Con’s Vice President of Business Development. “Gen Con attendees can preserve their memories of The Best Four Days In Gaming™, and will be able to count on selecting a consistent, quality product each year.”

Pre-orders and advanced shipping will begin in late spring. Visit conquestjournal.com or Quest\_Journals on Twitter for more information on the new designs and timelines as they become available.
